Dear Applicant

The Graduate School of System Design and Management, founded on the 150th anniversary of Keio University, is Japan's first full-scale educational and research institution set up to produce graduates able to create new systems that fuse engineering with the social sciences. The purpose of the Graduate School is to support sustained development in the international community and set in motion new trends for the 21st century. Recent years have seen the emergence of serious incidents, scandals, and other social phenomena that hint at the fraying of modern society's enormous and complex systems. In overcoming these problems and designing technical systems that are safe, secure, and harmonious with society, we need to use both approaches based on engineering concepts to compose secure design by looking at things as systems and approaches based on social science concepts to accurately ascertain trends in the international community and markets, flexibly consider diverse senses of values and new organizational formats and create new sustainable social systems.

By implementing "Design Projects" that devise concrete systems, the Graduate School endeavors to offer a comprehensive curriculum for training systems designers capable of innovative system design and project leaders capable of management that incorporates complex processes in order to satisfy the needs of companies that develop and operate aerospace equipment, large-scale plants, and automobile manufacturing as well as those in the energy, biotechnology, robotics, information and communications, media industries, socio-critical systems, and disaster countermeasure systems. To this end, the Graduate School opens its doors widely, not just to new university graduates, but also to working adults from government organizations and companies in Japan and overseas. Accordingly, we have created a flexible system for administering entrance examinations. Our "Program for Career Professionals" even allow students to enroll while still employed. We have also enabled students in the Master's Program to select a flexible course curriculum in order to meet the specific needs of people from a diversity of backgrounds. The Graduate School has increased the number of classes conducted in English to provide an opportunity to obtain a degree in English.

Please ensure that you have a clear understanding of the concepts and approaches of the Graduate School when applying for admission. We'll be looking forward to applying from those who try to improve their skills, aim to become systems designers and project's leaders in the future.

Admissions policy

For the master's programs, we admit both persons aspiring to conduct research and put into practice the design and engineering of innovative technological systems that will contribute to resolving many of the large-scale and complex issues of the modern day, and those aspiring to research on and implement the leadership and management required to propose solutions to issues in the diverse social systems of today and guide these projects to success. In order to foster personnel befitting of these degrees, we admit people from many walks of life, including persons advancing to graduate school directly after completing their bachelor degrees and those with hands-on experience (early career/seasoned professionals) at organizations in the public, private, and other sectors. Screenings are conducted to comprehensively assess whether candidates have sufficient aptitude, skillsets, and desire to actively study alongside students from diverse backgrounds and put what they learn to practical use in the real world.

For the doctoral programs, we admit both persons aspiring to support various fields as researchers and social practitioners through advanced academic research on the design and engineering of innovative technological systems that will contribute to resolving many of the large-scale and complex issues of the modern day, and those aspiring to contribute to various fields as researchers and social practitioners through proposing solutions to issues in the diverse social systems of today and advanced academic research on the leadership and management to guide these projects to success. In order to foster personnel befitting of these degrees, we admit people from a wide range of spheres across generations, including persons with hands-on experience in the public and private sectors (early career/seasoned professionals) as well as students who have completed a master's degree program. Screenings are conducted to comprehensively assess whether candidates possess academic and research capabilities equivalent to those required for the master's program, the initiative to plan and conduct research, and sufficient aptitude, skillsets, and desire to put what they learn to practical use in society as specialists, in addition to whether they have made the preparations necessary to pursue their research after admission.

8) Other points to note when submitting applications will be posted on the Graduate School's website from time to time. Ensure that you check the website before submitting your application.

[4] First Screening

The First Screening will entail a screening of application documents.

[5] Announcement of Results of the First Screening

The results of the First Screening will be announced on the website of the Graduate School of System Design and Management. Results will all be displayed by examinee number. The schedule and assembly time for the Second

Screening will be announced on the same day. Inquiries regarding the screening results will not be accepted.

[6] Second Screening

The applicants who have passed the first document-based screening should undergo the second and final screening that comprises, for each individual applicant, both a face-to-face interview and an essay writing. They are both aimed at examining the applicant's knowledge on systems, design and management, and her/his ability to address the issue in question in ways that are both logical, and are from broad, birds'-eye perspectives.

For both the interview and the essay writing, those seeking to enter the school from the second semester that begins in September could choose English, should they wish to make English her/his working language. Those wishing to enter in April must choose Japanese. The choice of language between the two makes no difference in selecting the entrants. *

For the second screening, please print out your examination admission slip and bring it with you as instructed at the announcement of results of the first screening.

Applicants who have come later than the designated assembly time should be considered absent and would not be allowed to take the second screening. **

Those residing outside Japan could instead do both the interview and the essay writing on-line, via such video communication means as Zoom (preferred), WebEx or Skype.

The school takes absolutely no responsibility as regards the quality, or the lack thereof, of the video transmissions between the school and the applicant. Voice-only communication, if it is the maximum quality achievable, makes the applicant automatically ineligible. The quality of visual communication is vital not only for the face-to-face interview but also for the essay-writing in order for appropriate anti-plagiarism supervision to be provided throughout the duration of the time for the writing.

More technically:

1. Prepare a laptop or desktop computer, a web camera, a headphone, a microphone, and a broadband internet environment. Speakers must stay turned off;
2. Examinees must be alone in the room during the examination.
3. A date will be set prior to the examination so that the applicant can check whether the online system/connection works properly. For the second screening, you must use the same room used for this advance check. Should you wish to use a different room for a specifiable reason, contact the Admissions Office of the SDM well in advance to the second screening.

More details of the second screening are to be provided to those who have successfully passed the first screening. Note, also, that Japanese calendar and Japan Standard Time will be used throughout.

* Notes on language selection

① Enrollment period and language selection

In principle, regardless of the respective applicants' first language, applicants who wish to enroll in April should take examinations in Japanese and those who wish to enroll in September should take examinations in English.

② Verification of language proficiency

- 1) Applicants for April enrollment whose first language is not Japanese should submit the results (scores) of the Japanese-Language Proficiency Test (JLPT). Passing N1 level is desirable. (Photocopy of certificate is acceptable) If you have completed or are expected to complete a program at a university or other institution by taking classes taught in Japanese only, you do not need to submit it. Your Japanese language proficiency will be checked both at essay writing and at the interview.
- 2) Applicants for September enrollment whose first language is not English should submit the results (scores) of language proficiency examinations such as TOEFL, IELTS, etc. (Photocopy of certificate is acceptable) If you have completed or are expected to complete a program at a university or other institution where you can obtain a degree by taking classes taught in English only, you do not need to submit it. Your English language proficiency will be checked both at essay writing and at the interview.

 Points to note on the day of the examination

If you are late due to disruptions or delays in public transportation serving the vicinity of the examination venue, you may still be permitted to take the examination. Please report to a staff member at the examination venue.

If there are major disruptions or delays and the university determines on the day of the examination that many students taking the exams will be affected, the exam times of all examinations may be delayed to the extent that this does not interfere with the examinations from taking place. However, the university will not be liable for personal losses incurred by students due to these measures.

Those who are found to be infected and not yet recovered or are potentially infected with infectious diseases for which the School Health and Safety Act requires attendance at university to be suspended (influenza, measles, rubella, COVID-19, etc.) have to consult with Admissions Office of the Graduate School of System Design and Management.

[7] Announcement of Results of the Second Screening

[4] First Screening

The First Screening will entail a screening of application documents.

[5] Announcement of Results of the First Screening

The results of the First Screening will be announced on the website of the Graduate School of System Design and Management. Results will all be displayed by examinee number. The schedule and assembly time for the Second Screening will be announced on the same day. Inquiries regarding the screening results will not be accepted.

[6] Second Screening

For the Second Screening, we will give oral examinations to the applicants successfully passing the First Screening. Oral examinations will see how the examinees can put the given questions into a logical as well as broader perspective, with a focus on the extent in which the examinees understand "systems", "design", and "management". Applicants may select either Japanese or English as the language to be used in the examinations; this choice will have no impact on the results of the Second Screening. *

For the second screening, please print out your examination admission slip and bring it with you as instructed at the announcement of results of the first screening.

Applicants who arrive later than the designated assembly time are considered absent and will not be allowed to take the examinations. **

Those residing outside Japan could instead do both the interview and the essay writing on-line, via such video communication means as Zoom (preferred), WebEx or Skype.

The school takes absolutely no responsibility as regards the quality, or the lack thereof, of the video transmissions between the school and the applicant. Voice-only communication, if it is the maximum quality achievable, makes the applicant automatically ineligible. The quality of visual communication is vital not only for the face-to-face interview but also for the essay-writing in order for appropriate anti-plagiarism supervision to be provided throughout the duration of the time for the writing.

More technically:

1. Prepare a laptop or desktop computer, a web camera, a headphone, a microphone, and a broadband internet environment. Speakers must stay turned off;
2. Examinees must be alone in the room during the examination.
3. A date will be set prior to the examination so that the applicant can check whether the online system/connection works properly. For the second screening, you must use the same room used for this advance check. Should you wish to use a different room for a specifiable reason, contact the Admissions Office of the SDM well in advance to the second screening.

More details of the second screening are to be provided to those who have successfully passed the first screening. Note, also, that Japanese calendar and Japan Standard Time will be used throughout.

 Language Proficiency Screening

You must provide the school with verification as regards your academic linguistic proficiency of either English or Japanese, if your native language is neither one of the above.

* Points to note on the day of the examination

If you are late due to disruptions or delays in public transportation serving the vicinity of the examination venue, you may still be permitted to take the examination.

Please report to a staff member at the examination venue.

If there are major disruptions or delays and the university determines on the day of the examination that many students taking the exams will be affected, the exam times of all examinations may be delayed to the extent that this does not interfere with the examinations from taking place. However, the university will not be liable for personal losses incurred by students due to these measures.

Those who are found to be infected and not yet recovered or are potentially infected with infectious diseases for which the School Health and Safety Act requires attendance at university to be suspended (influenza, measles, rubella, COVID-19, etc.) have to consult with Admissions Office of the Graduate School of System Design and Management.

[7] Announcement of Results of the Second Screening

The results of the Second Screening will be announced on the website of the Graduate School of System Design and Management. Results will all be displayed by examinee number. Inquiries regarding the screening results will not be accepted.
